

Southwest JA Center Drives for Fund Goal

The Southwest Junior Achievement district, which helps support 31 teenager-operated miniature corporations in this area, has reached 40 per cent of its fund drive goal with less than two weeks to go.

The goal of the two-month drive, which began Jan. 24, is $28,045, and as of last week, $11,235 had been collected. The money covers the cost of operating the Southwest JA Center and paying of a professional staff, expenses not met by revenue that Junior Achievers bring in from sale of their products.

"WE'VE GOT TO push hard to hit our goal by the end of our drive on March 20," southwest district chairman Ernest W. Hahn said.

"Of the $11,235 collected to date, $6,105, or more than half, has come from renewals by firms already members of the Junior Achievement program. We need more new subscriber firms."

Each of the 31 Junior Achievement companies is sponsored by a business or industrial firm, the eventual beneficiaries of JA training. These firms provide 95 adult advisers who donate their time. More than 500 teenagers from 21 high schools in the Southwest and Central areas participate in the 31 JA companies where they learn about free enterprise by practicing it.

Each JA company exists for one school year, then is liquidated. During this time, the youngsters choose a product to decide how much working capital they need to produce and market it, sell stock at 50 cents a share, manufacture their product, and try to return a profit to their stockholders.

Hahn, president of E.W. Hahn, Inc., Hawthorne, has eight "captains" helping him in the 1963 drive.

They are: Jim Driskell, North American Aviation; J.M. Drulliner, Northrop Corp.; Wayne Ewing, Arrowsmith Tool & Die Co.; R.S. Farr, Farr Co.; Gil Laven Jr., Laven Insurance Co.; Cliff Rich, McCulloch Corp.; Bob Scruggs, National Cash Register; and Frank Stanley, Minneapolis Honeywell.

These eight captains in turn have approximately 53 stockholders working for them.

Thought must be made better, and human life more fruitful, for divine energy to move it onward and upward.—Mary Baker Eddy.
