Ann Landers

(Continued From Page 13) have to hand it back to the owner and confess that he stole it. Go along with him to make sure he does it.

If this does not cure him, the boy needs professional help. Youngsters who steal usually have deep-seated emotional problems.

Dear Ann Landers: Six months ago our office supervisor took up a collection to buy a gift for a girl who was getting married and leaving the office. The girl said the gift was too bulky to carry home on public transportation but she promised to drive in the following week and pick it up. The gift is still in the office and none of us have received a thank you note. It seems evident that this girl has no intention of picking up the gift and that she cares nothing for it.

It's too late to return the gift for a refund. We've asked the supervisor to please do something about the gift but still it sits here. If you have any suggestions we'd like to hear them — since everyone's money is involved. — PUZZLED

Dear Puzzled: The supervisor should phone the girl and tell her if she doesn't come for the gift within the week it will be auctioned off to the highest bidder. Then put it on the bloc.

Confidential to NO HORSE SENSE: Hundreds of readers have written to say there is a book which can smarten' you up on "horse-talk." It is "The Horseman's Encyclopedia" by Margaret Cabell Seif. Your library has it.

To learn the knack of feeling comfortable with the opposite sex, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How to Be Date Bait," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope. (C) 1963, Publishers Newspaper Syndicate.
