The Green Thumber
DAISIES SERVE USEFUL PURPOSE

By LEWIS LORING
The daisy is a name that is now applied to a large class of hardy giant flowered types of plants that serve many uses in the garden. As a long stemmed cut flower with remarkable lasting qualities they are becoming increasingly popular for commercial use as well as in the home garden where they are often used in a portion of a wide sunny bed or as an evergreen plant row to serve as a property line marker.
This, along with their utility for cut flower usage, is a good reason for some of them to be worked into every home garden.
Large Single Flower
The Shasta daisy is one type. Every home owner knows the large single white flower of this type, but there are other forms available from your nursery and garden supply dealer at this time. One such type is the Esther Reed, which is a fine large pure white with an anemone center. This variety doesn't grow too tall.
Another is the Marconi, which is also pure white, with double flower petals and grows to about 2½ feet or more. The Majestic and the Muriel, are frilly duplex types which a medium to short growth.
Other Colors
Don't overlook the Gerbera, or Transvaal daisy. Root divisions of this type are also available now.

Annapolis Alternates

Anthony Mickas, 4819 Sharyne Lane, Torrance; and James Wuerth Stewart, 2217 Via Acalones, Palos Verdes Estates; have been named fourth alternates for 1956 appointment to Annapolis, it was announced by Congressman Cecil R. King.

The above mentioned daisies are all white, but the Gerbera is available in both single and double forms in shadings of salmon, orange, red, and pink as well as white. These varieties that I am discussing today are all very easily grown and require a minimum of care and attention. Use them when sun and poor soil seem to combine to wither away your other plants in a problem spot.
In planting, be sure that the crown of the plant is not buried. The plants do lots better when this crown is at or slightly above the soil level.

Alondra Park Improvements

A long range general development program will establish Alondra park as one of the finest recreational areas in Los Angeles county when all of the improvements planned under the program have been completed. Supervisor Kenneth Hahn reported this week.
Within the next few months the improvements scheduled for the area of the swimming pool will be evident, since that area was chosen for immediate development, with the improvement of the northwest corner to be carried out as additional funds become available. Supervisor Hahn said that many improvements are to be made at the swimming pool, including re-working of the water inlet system to provide better circulation and chlorination, general landscaping and providing a picnic area, and the building of a retaining wall.
