SQUARING OFF FOR THE BATTLE—That's what these students at the Riviera School mock political convention did Friday.

Riviera Students Stage Mock National Political Convention

"It'll be a battle to the finish," vowed William Moss and Peter Tymstra, Democratic and Republican candidates for President of the United States following their nominations for the office Friday in a mock political convention at Riviera School.

Eighth grade students in the classes of Mrs. Irma Wilson and Ronald Hall continued their study of American government by holding mock conventions, complete with banners, floats, and the usual political speeches.

Students divided up into parties and selected states which they would represent. Then, they met in convention, drew up a party platform, and nominated candidates for president and vice president.

are Dan Ely, national chairman; Rickie Robbins, vice presidential nominee; Bill Moss, presidential candidate (all Democrats) and Peter Tymstra, presidential nominee; Jean McClun, vice presidential candidate and Bill Castleberry, national chairman (all Republicans).

Both party platforms contained the usual pledges of honesty, lower taxes, and better government, but both plugged strongly for admission of Hawaii as a state and speedy development of outer space.

Dan Ely and John Castleberry acted as chairmen of the Democratic and Republican parties, respectively. Lynn Bowman was convention secretary.

The mock convention, held every year, is part of the eighth grade study of government. After grade study of government. After the conventions are over, students continue their study of government. Each youngster concentrates individual study on the state which he represented at the convention.

about his state and bills which are currently in congress.

Students also follow the current bills through Congress, both in their own model congress and in the newspapers.

After yesterday's election, the student congress will meet to consider legislation similar to that which is being discussed in Washington. There also will be a Supreme Court and presidential cabinet.
