TAKE ME TO YOUR TRASH CAN—That was the slogan of the winning trash can design at Wood School, which currently is waging a bitter battle against litterbugs. Admiring the winning design are Custodian Herb Alverson, who was honored at a Monday assembly, and Mike Sullivan, Student Council safety chairman.

Wood Students Hold Contest in Anti-Litter Campaign

Wood School students, busy waging a war on litterbugs, Monday paused to honor their school's chief anti-litterbug man—Custodian Herb Alverson.
Alverson was honored at a special anti-litterbug assembly Monday at the school. Students themselves became "custodians for a day" to show their appreciation to Alverson for his work in keeping the campus clean. Special anti-litter activities are underway from Jan. 19 to 30.
By resolution of the student council, students vowed to do a better job in helping Alverson and his staff keep the campus neat.
Winners of contests for the best anti-litterbug posters and decorations for the school's trash cans were announced at the assembly.
The winning trash can showed an outer space visitor, litter in hand, saying "Take me to your trash can."
At the Monday assembly, Alverson was honored with presentations from the various rooms, including anti-litter poems and stories, a drawing of himself, a citation saying "World's Best Custodian," and an anti-litter ditty sung to the tune of the "Chimpunk Song."
Student body President Gayle Schenk presided, with Student Council Safety Chairman Mike Sullivan acting as emcee.
