The Younger They Are, the Harder They Can Run

You are only as old as you feel, and 90 years of age is just mere adolescence to John P. Horn, of 229 E. 219th St. The Torrance man demonstrated his youthful agility Tuesday night when two men robbed him of his $50 wrist watch after threatening him with a knife in front of the Long Beach public library. Horn, a retired teacher, undauntedly chased the two men, aged 50 and 65, for 250 yards until they ran into the arms of a policeman. The successful chase over, Horn recovered his watch, showing no ill effects.

Airport Staff Expansion Probed

Possible over-staffing at Torrance Municipal Airport was ordered for investigation by City Manager George Stevens. Councilman J. A. Beasley said that he learned the number of employes has risen from four to 11 in the year the city has operated the airport. "We hear the operation fund of the airport is broke all the time. It'll stay broke if we hire all those people," he declared. The subject was raised during a discussion for requested extension of control tower operation.
