

CHECKING WORKBOOKS—Mary Fritzel and David Smith check their workbooks with Mrs. Margaret Wolff, fourth grade teacher at Crenshaw School, Torrance. Mrs. Wolff has devised a new system of teaching arithmetic individually, so that it can be "more interesting and fun." Each child has his own workbooks and moves on as quickly as possible. Progress is recorded by stars placed on a large chart.

Unusual Teaching Method Created By Torrance District Instructor

A method of teaching arithmetic "individually," designed to be "interesting and fun," has been devised by a former insurance company statistician now teaching at Crenshaw Elementary School.

A fourth grade teacher, Mrs. Margaret Wolff, felt that the arithmetic program in her room needed an "extra push." Drawing on her extensive math background she designed a program designed to help pupils move ahead as fast as possible, learning as much as they can.

LIKE METHOD
"Youngsters seem to like this method because they can see how they are doing and where they are going," Mrs. Wolff said. "Now it's hard to get them to stop doing arithmetic and to start another subject."

Mrs. Wolff's system is similar in many ways to the S.R.A. reading kits, which place emphasis on providing work for each ability level in the class. The S.R.A. program is copyrighted for reading, but no similar program yet is available for arithmetic.

Several other teachers have tried Mrs. Wolff's method and have found that it works well.

STATISTICIAN
A graduate of the University of Manitoba, Mrs. Wolff was a statistician with the Occidental Life Insurance Co. for several years before her marriage.

About two years ago, her contacts with schools through her children made her decide to become a teacher. She went to U.S.C. to get her teaching credential and started teaching at Crenshaw this fall.

A resident of Torrance for about 10 years, she lives with her family at 16418 Arlington Ave.

This course is open to women who have completed their twelfth week of pregnancy, and have a doctor's written permission.

The instructor for the class is Mrs. Doris Alles, registered physical therapist. She will offer posture, relaxation, training for labor and delivery and post partum exercises for muscle restoration.

This course is limited to fourteen women and the first registered will be accepted. For those unable to join the class another class will begin in eight weeks.

LETTERS

I am writing this letter in response to the editorial printed on the front page of the "Torrance Press" on Sunday anuary 1, 1961.

It states that an owner of a furniture store said, and I quote: "I wonder where our police are? I can see them at any time drinking coffee in some shop but when our police blotters are full of unsolved burglaries of homes and business establishments I began to wonder."

I take sharp issue regarding the above statement. Granted, policemen drink coffee, just as most people do. Men in uniform look alike when sitting in a coffee shop. They also eat lunch in these establishments. I'm sure the policemen you see in the coffee shops are not the same ones, all day or night long.

Being one of the men you have chosen to criticize generally, I along with the others, take offense at your generalization. Your statement discredits a group of dedicated men, who I can assure you, do a great deal more than drink coffee all night.

In reference to the "Smash & Grab" bandits who struck two jewelry stores within a block and within a week. If we had the men we should have, this may not have occurred.

Quoting from the "Peace Officers Research Association of California" annual report 1959-1960. It states the following: The City of Pasadena has a population of 123,000 with 166 sworn personnel, one for every 740 population. Glendale has a population of 118,000 with 155 sworn personnel, one for every 761 population. San Bernardino has 100,000 population with 160 sworn personnel, one for every 625 population. Burbank has 92,000 population with 140 sworn personnel, one for every 657 population. Torrance has 100,000 population with 99 sworn personnel, one for every 1010 population.

These are the facts, gentlemen. I encourage you to check them. I sincerely hope you will publish this letter. A Policeman's View, R. E. Daly, Torrance Police

TODAY'S HOME DIFFERS

The average new home built today differs considerably from those built even a few years ago. Anaconda home specialists point out. Today's home, they report, has 20% more floor area, 10% more rooms, and additional bathroom, more insulation and is much more likely to contain all-copper plumbing, including water lines and drainage systems.
