Bob Baker Marionettes Set for AAUW Benefit

Palos Verdes-Rolling Hills branch of the American Association of University Women is proud to announce that they are presenting the Bob Baker Marionettes in three performances, at 11 a.m., 2 p.m., and 3:30 p.m. on the first day of Easter vacation, March 27, at the Eagle Hall, 128 South Catalina St. in Redondo.

For those children between three and 90 the news that Bob Baker is going to present his Marionettes in one of their miniature musical reviews will be greeted with gleeful anticipation. For puppets were delighting audiences five centuries before Christ in Greece, and the art of puppetry dates back to most ancient times in Java, China, and Japan.

The stringed puppet was given the name "Marionette," or "Little Mary," because the first puppet shows were acted out on the cathedral steps in medieval European towns, and since they were religious in nature the most important character was the Virgin Mary. Even during Puritan days in England when theatrical performances generally were frowned upon, the puppet theater continued to flourish.

Bab Baker has developed puppetry into a high art. His marionettes have appeared on every television station in Hollywood on such shows as Dinah Shore's, George Gobel's, Lux Video Theater, Art Linkletter's House Party, and many many more. They have also appeared in motion pictures including "A Star is Born," "Paris in the Spring," "Hunt the Man Down," and others.

Besides television and motion pictures, they have performed for thousands of birthday parties throughout the Southland for children of all ages; entertained at picnics and parties of all kinds and sizes; appeared before church groups and schools; both public and private; and have performed for clubs and organizations of all types. They are so popular and so much in demand that they must be booked weeks ahead of their appearance.

Their presentations have been rescribed as "fresh and beautiful." Louella Parsons calls their show "enchanting and delightful entertainment for everyone." Hedda Hopper agrees that the presentation is "utterly refreshing," and Cobina Wright says: "The wonderful Bob Baker Marionettes entranced the children and adults alike . . . a performance so fascinating that every adult in the room was spellbound before it was over."

Many Brownie troops in the area are planning to attend the shows in groups according to Mrs. James D. Conant, fellowship chairman, who has made all arrangements for the shows. She says that the presentation will be "in the round" so that the audience can watch closely the skillful manipulations of the puppeteers.

Tickets are on sale at 70 cents each or 3 for $2. They may be obtained by calling FR 5-0131, FR 5-8131, or TE 2-9632. Proceeds from this show will be used to swell the AAUW Fellowship Fund, which helps provide "Dollars For Scholars."
