Signups for Fall Courses Slated at Harbor College

Registration for fall day and evening courses at Harbor College is under way.

A course in Introduction to Business will be offered in the evening division during the fall semester at Harbor College, according to Carmen Marinella, chairman of the business division.

The class will be taught by Russell D. Albers, president of MacFarlane's Candies, from 6:30 to 9:30 Wednesday beginning Sept. 18.

Purpose of the course will be to give a clear description of the area of activity known as business, to develop an awareness of the economic framework that constitutes the capitalistic system, to promote an understanding of the tools of management in making decisions, to aid in selecting a field of study for a career, and to supply a unified look at the whole of the business activity.

Also to be taught from 6:30 to 9:30 Wednesday evenings will be a course in written communications. Instructor will be Fred Michaelian, Jr., public relations counselor for Wolcott, Thomsen and Co., Inc.

Emphasis will be placed on the writing of business letters and reports, memoranda, bulletins and technical manuals.

Offered on Monday evenings, according to Marinella, will be a class on office management to be conducted from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. by James McArthur of the IBM Corporation.

Analysis will be made of the functions of various office departments, organization and management. Methods used in selecting and training office personnel, office planning and layout, and methods and devices used to improve operating efficiency will be studied.

In the humanities division of the evening school two Russian classes will be taught, according to Dwight Garner, chairman. The elementary Russian class started last semester by Mrs. Irene R. Rydelek will be continued on an advanced level while a new beginning class will be formed. Both of the four unit classes, which are acceptable for Slavic Language credit at UCLA, will meet from 6:30 to 9:30 Tuesday nights and from 6:30 to 8:30 Thursday nights.

For the first time this fall Harbor College will offer digital computer programming courses in both the day and evening division, according to Stuart M. Friedman, chairman of the mathematics and physics division. Friedman will instruct the day classes and James L. Malakoff will be evening instructor.

Keyed to the IBM 1620 computer, the courses will include: Mathematics 62, survey of digital computer programming; machine language; advanced computer programming; and numerical methods. The classes will confer credit acceptable at Long Beach State College and UCLA.

Application for admission must be filed prior to Sept. 6. Further information may be obtained by calling at the college or phoning TE 5-0161.
