

Teacher Orientation Vital School Function

How does a school district prepare its new teachers to cope with the challenge of a new life in a new community and their responsibility in carrying out their new job? This was the subject of a program presented by four Torrance principals Monday at a luncheon of the Torrance Educational Advisory Committee, held at the Torrance Recreation Center.

Discussing the Torrance teacher orientation program were Dr. John Lucas, principal of South High; Dr. Dale Wickstrom, principal of Hamilton Elementary School; Martin Beaudet, principal of Casimir School, and Larry Miller, principal of Towers Elementary School.

NEW TEACHERS are full of questions, according to Dr. Lucas. They want to know where schools and churches are located, what type of housing is available, what forms of recreation are available; how the superintendent feels about things; how the district is managed, and school policies and procedures regarding discipline, grading, text and library books, and dozens of other details. Questions range from information concerned with school and district philosophy to where to borrow money, Lucas said.

Answer to their questions are offered during orientations at the individual schools the Thursday and Friday before school starts, he pointed out.

One of the most important things a new teacher learns during those first two days, according to Miller, is "what we believe in." Miller listed Torrance's educational beliefs as follows:

"WE BELIEVE in a strong academic program for children of all ages. We believe in the perpetuation of our American Heritage. We believe that teaching of reading is a paramount responsibility and that phonetic analysis should be assured its proper place in that reading program. We believe in the supremacy of the individual human being with all its implications for education such as differentiated instruction and guidance. We believe in the individuality of teachers, and in fostering this individuality to bring out the best they have to offer our children."

Orientation of old teachers as well as new ones takes place the Monday and Tuesday before school begins, according to Beaudet, when board policies and changes are re-emphasized and the principal has an opportunity to stress to his faculty the importance of impressions made on the first day of school.

WHAT ARE some of the things the old and new faculty discuss together in back-to-school orientation sessions? According to Beaudet they range from record-keeping to flag raising. Some of the things they talk about are grades, homework, first aid, modern math, remedial reading, and group conferences, he said.

According to Dr. Wickstrom, orientation doesn't stop when the pupils return to school; it's an on-going thing throughout the year. "A principal will discuss specific instances as they arise throughout the year," Wickstrom said. Among the items that get discussed after school starts are: students' discipline, instructional plans, student council activities, written guides, study trips, and curriculum, he specified.

$3,600 Damages Awarded Torrance Schools in Suit

Torrance Unified School District will receive $3,610 as a result of a ruling this week by Atty. Gen. Thomas C. Lynch.

Officials of the companies involved were accused of meeting for five years in hotels throughout the country for the alleged purpose of price-fixing, according to the state attorney general, who called the litigation the "biggest anti-trust suit" in state history. The judgment will be filed with the Ninth Circuit Federal District Court in San Francisco, according to Lynch.

Damages on a statewide basis totaled $575,000, and in Los Angeles County alone came to $158,491.

Charges against six manufacturers of price-fixing conspiracy were initiated in 1960, according to S. E. Waldrip, assistant superintendent of business in Torrance.

Bleachers located at North and South High Schools were involved. They are of the type used extensively in recent years throughout the nation, folding against the wall when
