Miss Teen-Ager's Bills Total $6 Million a Year

By REYNOLDS KNIGHT

Just as fathers and mothers may have suspected all along, experts now claim that teenage girls are a $6-billion annual market for everything from cosmetics to soft drinks.

To get a share of this sizable market manufacturers are busily sponsoring contests of every description among the teeners, who already number 11 million and are expected to increase substantially as Korean war babies enter their teens. Among the contests is one to pick Miss Teen-Age America.

Advertisers and sales promotion executives find these various contests to be excellent ways of introducing their products to the youthful buyers and starting up a relationship that can last for years.

RAIL REVOLUTION — The railroad freight equipment being produced today is the product of a technological revolution that sees new products or improvements in old ones being announced almost weekly.

The improvements in railroad equipment that have come in the past 15 years, or even in the last ten, are greater than in all the first 85 or 90 years of the industry's history.

An example of such improvement is the Center Flow car manufacturer by ACF Industries, Inc., to carry greater quantities of dry bulk ladings. This car, called "100 cars in 1," signals the company's drive to give railroads and shippers equipment that will move more and more varieties of liquid and dry bulk ladings faster, safer and more economically.

New hatches on top of the Center Flow car and a variety of new outlets underneath have greatly increased loading speed, versatility and efficiency.

Today's equipment also represents the joint effort of shipper, railroads and manufacturers to solve problems created by new products, or the need to provide better shipping methods for existing products.

The light-weight, high-volume cars being produced today also answer the railroads' need for greater revenue per car while giving the shippers more efficient transportation.

PEACEFUL CO-EXISTENCE? — An American interpretation of those words and the Russian definition are two very different things, according to a man who spent almost a quarter-century fighting Communism as a member of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Louis B. Nichols, now executive vice president of Schenley Industries, Inc., told a recent audience that "to most Americans these words — peaceful co-existence — mean 'you live there. We live here. We will not interfere in your affairs. You will not interfere in ours, and so on.'"

But, for the Communists, he added, "the meaning of peaceful co-existence is entirely different. It is a complex strategic doctrine designed to serve the cause of the world-wide Communist movement in its prosecution of the world-wide revolution."

"The (Russian) policy of peaceful co-existence is a policy of mobilizing the masses and launching vigorous action against the enemies (all who oppose Communism) of peace," Mr. Nichols said.

SCIENCE NEWS — The day when medical science can replace an ailing human heart with a new one may be closer than we think. A New York City medical team earlier in 1964 performed a heart transplant in a dog which now, six months later, still is very much alive and frisky. . . . From Yugoslavia comes a report of a new test for throat cancer, still the subject of research, that utilizes an ultraviolet lamp and tetracycline. . . . The possible elimination of operative procedures for curing gallstones is seen in dietary experiments aimed at reduction of fat in the diet. The amount of fat in the diet was found in laboratory experiments to have a direct connection with development of gallstones. . . . Out in Wisconsin some aquatic biologists have wired bass for sound in order to study the migratory habits of the fish. The goal is to discover how fish find their way back to their spawning ground without error.

THINGS TO COME — A new camper's shovel only 18 inches long, over all, that is short enough for easy packing but sturdy enough for all camp jobs. . . . A new thermostat for hen houses, dairy barns, horse stalls, pigsties and brood-

ers. It is designed for precise temperature control that can mean healthier animals. . . . For wintertime ice fishermen there is a reel with built-in red beacon that flashes when a fish bites. . . . Ultraviolet flashlight kit for biological and mineralogical studies. The light is less than 12 inches long, and 1 1/2 inches in diameter. . . . For Sunday brunch, a new hot tray with rotating bin for rolls or buns. Leaves top clear for dishes with food to be heated. . . . For drying sweaters, a 24-inch-square nylon net screen fits four-legged frame that can stand on countertop, in bath or shower stall. Air circulating through screen helps dry both sides of sweater at once.

NEAR CRENSHAW — GROUND FLOOR — MODERN, AIR CONDITIONED OFFICE

Here are three kinds of tigers. We sell two. (Have you priced a tiger lately?)

The quick ones are ours. Pontiac Le Mans, top left. Fierce: 250 or 285 hp optional. Pontiac GTO, above. Ferocious. Comes with 335 hp, bucket seats, Hurst floor shifter, dual exhausts, heavy-duty springs, redline tires. The whole package. That other tiger? A puzzled cat. Checked out a "sporty" car, found it doesn't come with fangs at that stripped-down price. Look around. See.
