By Mike Connolly

Dear Rat Fink: Why did you run that "news item" about that nice man, Art Carney, having a nervous breakdown? True or not, it wasn't very nice of you.—Bob Jeffries, Red Bluff, Calif.

Dear Bob: I'm not the rat fink who ran it, some other r.f. did. But I would have if I could have gotten confirmation from the Institute of Living in Hartford, Conn., where Art is undergoing treatment. Names make news. Those same names have to resign themselves to taking the good with the bad when they become public figures. Art, I might add, and this should make you as happy as it makes me, is reportedly responding to the treatments.

Dear Mike: Which side are you on in the Kathy Kersh-Vince Edwards divorce? — Namoi L. Warren, Trumbull, Conn.

Dear Naomi: Neither. I'm strictly on the reporting end of it, although one might be able to find something to editorialize about in Kathy's statement that she heard Vince was "mean" before she married him. If so, she should have stayed single.

Dear Mr. C.: Did George Sanders marry Ronald Colman's widow? Did they separate? — Mrs. Charles DeVore, Pasadena.

Dear Mrs. DeVore: George's marriage to Benita Hume Colman seems to be very happy. Both take occasional acting jobs, the kind that won't interfere too much with the operation of the English sausage company they are operating.

Dear Mike: Please help me settle an argument. I claim Pauline Fredericks (of the United Nations) is the same one who played in pictures years ago. Am I wrong? — Mrs. Mary D. Norman, Arcadia.

Dear Mrs. Norman: Yes, Pauline Fredericks (without the "s") died several years ago.

Dear Mike: Why do the ads read "Miss Peggy Lee and 'Miss' Julie Andrews? Don't you consider it rather stuffy of them? — Millie Bocian, Chicago.

Dear Millie: Their agents think it adds "dignity" to bill them in this manner.

Dear Mr. C.: I have a bet with my wife that the Oriental actor Sessue Hayakawa was a star in Hollywood's silent films. Was he? — J. H. Mann, Philadelphia.

Dear Mr. Mann: He was. At 77, he's still starring, both here and in Japan. You're in for a treat when you catch a reissue of "The Bridge on the River Kwai."

Dear Mike: I would like to know the requirements for becoming a dancer on the "Hulabaloo" TV show, and also how to go about it. — Richard See, Lemon Grove, Calif.

Dear Richard: Call the station that beams this show and you'll be on the right track.

Dear Mr. C.: Why are they making so many TV programs for youthful viewers — shows that beam during the day, when children should be in school, and at night, when children should be doing their homework? — "Over 40," Galveston, Tex.

Dear "Over": The networks and agencies feel that teen-time is the time to train youngsters to buy the products they are sponsoring.

Mr. M.C.: What has happened to Ben Alexander, who once played in TV's "Dragnet" shows. Is he still alive? — Mrs. W. H. Maxwell, Pasadena, Texas.

Dear Mrs. Maxwell: Alive and NOT kicking, he's making so much money running a string of motels and a used-car lot.

Dear Mike: Is all that stuff about Mia Farrow and Frank Sinatra true? I certainly hope not. I don't have anything against him. He is a good singer and actor. But he's old enough to be her father. I used to think Mia was the greatest thing since Shirley Temple. But then, in this morning's paper, I read an article that said she might have gotten married secretly. Well, I was sick over that, and still am. I can't believe she would do such a thing. I felt so bad, I just had to write to you. I would appreciate your answering this letter. I'm sorry I'm such a pest. — Janear, Iakland.

Dear Janear: I hope I'm not standing in the way of your complete recovery when I tell you they are still very much in love. Maybe this medicine will help: they're no married — yet.
