College Senior Gets Post As Police Student Trainee

Anthony M. Veich, just returned from a two-year tour with the Peace Corps in Nepal, has been appointed a student trainee by the Torrance Police Department, Chief of Police Walter R. Goenig has announced. Veich is the second student trainee to be appointed by the local department. The first trainee, David N. Seibert, was appointed as a police officer in April. He graduated from Long Beach State College in June with a degree in police science and administration. Veich, 28 is currently a senior at Long Beach State College. He, too, is majoring in police science. Student trainees in the police department do administrative research and analytical work, Koenig said.

Operation Head Start Unit Meets at Gardena Nursery

Operation Head Start, a program designed to help children of limited opportunity who will enter kindergarten next fall, has been started at the Gardena Co-Op Nursery School in conjunction with the Alondra Park Methodist Church. Head Start is financed by federal funds under the anti-poverty program. Children attending the Gardena school will be exposed to a variety of health and social services and education activities to help them compete successfully in the school next fall. The Head Start unit for Gardena and surrounding areas is one of several throughout the Los Angeles area sponsored by the Center for Early Education and the Economic Opportunities Board. Mrs. Rosalie Greene is director of the summer program, Mrs. Sue Landesman, Mrs. Ida Lewis, and Mrs. Carol Lefevre, officers of the school, are in charge of organizing car pools. Classes began July 6 and will continue through Aug. 27. Use of cotton for textile is greater than that of all other fibers combined.
