

Six Carriage Place Homes Furnished for Inspection

OPEN DAILY . . . Carriage Place "Stanford" model home is one of six new furnished homes open daily from 10 a.m. until dark at the new home development at Figueroa Street and Sepulveda Boulevard. Grand opening is scheduled later this month.

Six completely furnished and decorated models are now open for inspection at Carriage Place, new residential community in the South Bay, announced John Gause, spokesman for Barclay-Hollander-Curci, the developers. Carriage Place will hold its Grand Opening in late August.

The six model homes were developed by John K. Barraclough, A.I.D., one of Southern California's foremost interior decorators.

The new furnished models are on display to allow prospective homebuyers to see decorating possibilities, in addition to inspecting construction features.

Barraclough in each model utilized the actual wallpapers, paneling, carpeting and paint selections available as part of the purchase price of a Carriage Place home.

EACH MODEL home focuses around a central style theme, ranging from Spanish to Early American. The furnishings skillfully set pace for the particular theme of the model. All six models are accessorized with decorative objects from many countries.

Color schemes vary from model to model, but maintain a unified theme within each home. For example, the Fremont model is done in soft, cool blues with warmer, brighter accents of rose and lilac. By varying emphasis and intensities of the colors, Barraclough succeeds in presenting individual rooms varying in brightness and warmth, but with a strong central theme throughout.
