Dear Mike: Is it true that Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton are retiring after they finish "The Taming of the Shrew"? I read that somewhere. I wouldn't like that. I don't care what their critics say about them — I have always admired them — Enora D'Aleo, Montclair, N.J.

Dear Enora: That rumor started when the Burtons announced they would co-produce "The Hangup" with Marty Ranshoff, who produced "The Sandpiper" for them. What they didn't make clear was that they will also co-star in it. Aside from that, always remember this about actors: they're being coy when they talk about quitting, they're fishing for fans such as you to plead "Please don't!" Happy?

Dear Mike: I recently saw a photo of Judy Lewis, accompanied by a caption that said she was Loretta Young's adopted daughter. I don't believe it. Judy looks so much like Loretta, I'm wondering if she isn't Loretta's daughter by the late Grant Withers — and if Loretta isn't covering up, in view of the fact that the Young-Withers marriage was annulled? — Mrs. O. W. Syracuse, N.Y.

Dear Mrs. W.: Judy is the adopted daughter of Loretta and Tom Lewis, who separated first in 1958, reconciled in 1959, separated in 1961, have been in Splitsville since. Some say if you live with someone long enough you start looking like that person. Could be.

Dear Mrs. G.: Is Natalie Wood really going to marry Stuart Whitman? They make a handsome couple but I cannot believe the rumors — not in view of her Never Again! announcement when she divorced actor Robert Wagner. — Christine Mamus, Laguna, Calif.

Dear Christine: See my advice to Enora D'Aleo about never believing actors and actresses. Sometimes, when I interview them, I wish I was back in Chicago covering a police beat. Then I think of what fun it is to go to The Daisy and watch Nat and Stu wheel into the parking lot on that motorcycle he just bought, and I sort of like it.

Dear Mike: I'm amazed at the erudition of Jack Valenti, the new president of the Motion Picture Association of America. I'm pleased, too, that Hollywood has such a literate man at its helm. But will you please tell me what his formidable knowledge about Thomas Babington Macaulay has to do with running the business? — Gordon Decker, Roswell, N. M.

Dear Gordon: Nothing at all. His scholarship is just an added fillip to what should prove an exciting new period for this town. Would you believe that Sir Anthony Eden, one of England's great statesmen, once lectured in London's Uffizi Club on French Post-Impressionist Paul Cezanne's theories about reproducing the geometric forms of nature in his (Cezanne's) paintings? You better believe it.

Dear Mike: How many marriages has Joan Fontaine had and who's her next? — Mrs. Jennie Buckner, San Diego.

Dear Jennie: Four — Brian Aherne, Bill Dozier, Collier Young and Alfred Wright. She says she won't "Take the Fifth." She says, "All I want from now on is to grow into an imperious, demanding old bag who will be just as rude to young people as the old people were to me when I was young." She sounds bitter, doesn't she?

Dear Mike: Will The Beatles or Sonny and Cher be coming to Texas any time? — Lula Thompson, Houston.

Dear Lula: The quartet, no; the twosome, yes. Sonny and his bride are brewing up a one-night stand in Lubbock on June 24, for a smashing salary of $20,000, as guaranteed by your oil-rich promoter!

Dear Mike: Is it true that Audrey Hepburn will appear in a film version of "Peter Pan"? She would be perfect in that part. — P. F., Sharon Hill, Pa.

Dear P.: She'll do it for director George Cukor and when his wrangling for the rights with the estate of its author, Sir James M. Barrie, results in a decision favoring him. Walt Disney, a previous bidder, is also involved. But if Walt gets it, watch for his "Mary Poppins" pet to make the

Wins Lighting Contract Bid

A contract for the installation of traffic signals and highway safety lighting at the intersection of Redondo Beach Boulevard and Ainsworth Avenue has been awarded to the Smith Electric Supply of Anaheim on their low bid of $8,831, reported Supervisor Kenneth Hahn.

The project is scheduled for completion in August and will improve safety in the community, especially for the children, Hahn said.

picture, and I mean Julie Andrews.
