Guardsmen Training

A million National Guardsmen and reservists are expected to take temporary leave of their civilian jobs for summer training this year.

Under federal laws protecting veterans' job rights, employers and employees should ensure that each fulfills his obligations to the other.

Robert L. Shelby, regional director of the U. S. Labor Department's office of veterans' reemployment rights, said the principal requirements were these:

Men and women called for duty must (1) request a leave of absence for training from their employer, and (2) report back to work promptly when training is over.

Employers must (1) grant leave for official training duty, and (2) reinstate the employee on his return to duty without any loss in seniority status, pay, and vacation rights.

Shelby said most employers continue the pay of men on short training duty, although the law makes no provision for this. He said absence for training may not be charged to an employee's vacation time, or to other types of paid leave he may earn while actually working.

Throughout the summer, Shelby said, the state total of troops expected to take some training are: Arizona, 2,856; California, 18,051; Idaho, 2,597; Montana, 2,451; Nevada, 771; Oregon, 6,241; Utah, 4,200; Washington, 5,825 and Hawaii, 2,893.

Two Named for Oregon Study

Karl D. Rodefer of 20408 Wayne Ave., and Richard D. Myers of 5145 Bluemound Road, Rolling Hills, are participating in the 11th annual Junior Engineers and Scientists Summer Institute at Oregon State University.

A total of 166 boys from the eight western states were selected for the institute. The youths attend classes in such fields as botany, chemistry, mathematics, physics and zoology for six hours each day.
