

Spend Week In Sierras Explorers

Members of Explorer Post 268-X, sponsored by the Downtown Torrance Lions Club, returned to Torrance Sunday after a week at Florence Lake in the High Sierras.

The boys and Post Adviser Bob Scarborough were taken to Florence Lake by Jack Eardley, institutional representative for the Lions Club, last Sunday. A base camp was established in Jack's Meadows.

During the week, the youths devoted most of the time to completing qualifications for the National Rifle Association. In addition, hiking, swimming, and fishing occupied many of the boys.

Prior to leaving for the campsite, the Post completed a project for the U. S. Forest Service. More than 500 seedling pines were planted in the Angeles National Forest. The Post also competed in an all-area meet. Mike Eardley earned the top score at the meet, which was supervised by the U. S. Marine Corps.

Awards Employee Service Citations to 63

Two Torrance area residents were among the 63 employees honored recently by the Douglas Missile and Space Systems Division for their contributions under the company's Value in Performance (V.I.P.) program.

In special ceremonies held at the Santa Monica facility, F. E. Case of 18220 Patronella Ave., who is involved in division coast reduction, and V. E. Crosley of 412 Ave. E. Redondo Beach, of the classified rocket program, were each presented with a framed citation for individual excellence by T. W. Stephens, vice president - director, Santa Monica programs, and by C. S. Perry, vice president, development engineering. Recipients also received pen-

This distinguished, new master-planned business community has been developed with the conviction that commercial esprit flourishes best when interrelated firms can perform amid graceful, efficient surroundings. Del Amo Financial Center is such a community . . . at the heart of a dynamic area . . . at a time of unprecedented economic activity . . . at the beginning of an era of sustained growth.

Among the first tenants in the initial phase of Del Amo Financial Center is Union Bank, which will locate its new South Bay Regional Head Office in the first tower building to be constructed. According to Harry Volk, Union Bank president,

"The Torrance area is one of the fastest growing regions in the Southland. Our new establishment at Del Amo will offer full banking services on an individual as well as a large-scale industrial level."

The strategic location of Del Amo Financial Center assures a competitive position not only for the South Bay trade area, but for the areas of Los Angeles, Long Beach and Orange County as well. From the Center's location at Hawthorne Blvd. and Carson St., Los Angeles is a 25-minute drive; Long Beach, 15; International Airport, 15. The Torrance Municipal Center is a few blocks distant. Across Hawthorne Blvd., a huge shopping complex contains such retail giants as Bullock's, J. Magnin, Desmond's, Joseph Magnin, The Broadway and Sears. Del Amo's location is also ideally suited to "commuting-free" residential living. The beach areas of Palos Verdes, Redondo Beach and Manhattan Beach provide all income levels with the carefree Southern California life.

The architecture of Del Amo Financial Center is a blending of utility with charm. Three 13-story towers, three 5-story ring buildings, and an informal grouping of smaller pavilion buildings will comprise the completed 19-acre complex. More than one million square feet of luxury office space and an equal amount of gauged parking space will be available. A landscaped setting of blue lagoons, gardens, pedestrian concourses and sundry shops will complement the distinctive structures.

Whether your needs call for an entire building, a floor, a suite, or an office, Del Amo Financial Center can be your springboard for business growth in the booming South Bay. Write today for a free brochure and leasing information, or top in at our office at Hawthorne Boulevard and Carson Street—across from Bullock's, Great Lakes Realty Corp., Del Amo Financial Center.
