Hollywood Reporter

By Mike Connolly

Dear Mike: Why did Jack Warner sign Vanessa Redgrave for Julie Andrews' role in the movie version of "Camelot"? Warner's "public image" has always seemed to me to be somewhat like that of Jack Armstrong, the All-American Boy. Yet here he is signing a self-possessed pro-Castro actress for one of the biggest parts of the year—big deal for the studio that ballyhoos itself as "Combining Good Citizenship with Good Picture Making!" —Ruth Champlin, Detroit.

Dear Mike: Could you please tell me whatever happened to Lloyd Hughes, the actor who was so popular back in the '20s and '30s? —C.A.P., West Springfield, Mass.

Dear C.: Lloyd died June 6, 1958.

Dear Ruth: Vanessa has promised to lay off the Party Line while making the picture. She has not, however, announced what cause will receive a percentage, if any, of the salary she will receive from Warner.

Dear Sir: Why was Jessica Walter fired from her co-starring role opposite Jim Garner in "Grand Prix"? I heard it was a case of temper-temper—and she seemed like such a sweet, docile young thing in "The Group." —Sally Witkoski, Charleston, S. C.

Dear Sally: It wasn't Jessica who was fired, it was Harriet Andersson, the Swedish actress who has since been replaced by Eva Marie Saint. It's true Jessica almost got fired, reportedly because she kept telling that old hand, John Frankenheimer, how to direct the picture. But he took her aside, gave her a good talking to, and she's still in. The temper-temper goes to Miss Andersson, the Ingmar Bergman discovery who told me during her visit to Monte Carlo that the only directors who know how to make good movies are European directors. The run-in with Frankenheimer followed.

Dear Sir: I'm a sort of semi-pro cameraman. I make short subjects and I'm proud of them, as are my friends and relatives. Would it be possible to submit them to Princess Grace for inclusion in the annual TV Film Festival in Monaco? —Jim Hawker, Moline, Ill.

Dear Jim: I don't see why not. Simply address Her Serene Highness, Princess Grace, Monaco. Her first choice this year, incidentally, is producer Seymour Robbie's special, "Beauty and the Beast."

Area Swim Pools Open For Season

County swimming pools in the Southwest area are now open for summer recreation for all residents, particularly youngsters, Supervisor Kenneth Hahn said today. "The programs at the pools provide not only recreation for youngsters, but they will be able to learn the elements of water safety under careful supervision," he said. Recreational swimming is open at all pools each day from 1 to 5 p.m. and at many pools on some evenings. Lessons are available weekdays from 9 a.m. until noon. Hahn pointed out free swimming is provided on Saturdays from 9 a.m. to noon. Locations of pools in the Southwest area are: Alondra Lake, 3535 Redondo Beach Blvd.; Lennox Pool, 10828 Condon Ave.; Lennox, and Sportsman's Park Pool, 9835 S. Western Ave.
