

GIANT HENRY HITE Visiting Here Thursday

Tallest Man Coming Here On Thursday

Henry Hite, the world's tallest man is coming to Leonards Discount Department store Thursday from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m. Hite, who stands a full 8 ft. tall will give away pictures and sign autographs.

Hite is appearing on behalf of Wilson's Certified Meats. His fabulous wardrobe includes a size 8 jeweled crown and a 7' long scarlet robe along with the more conventional items such as size 22 shoes, 19 1/2 shirts, and trousers twice the ordinary size.

Henry Hite finds, like Gulliver, that life in a Lilliputian world must be custom made. His shoes cost $90 a pair and suits are a big bargain at $250 each. His home features 9-foot tall doors and 12-foot high ceilings, as well as giant sized furniture. "Handkerchiefs are the only thing that I can buy that are ready-made," insists Hite. The giant confesses his love for travel—as long as it's not by overnight train. Special accommodations are required wherever he goes for as simple a thing as a good night's sleep. Usually, two beds are pushed together so that he can stretch out. "I sleep longer than most anybody," he quips. The appearance of the Wilson Giant at Leonards is in conjunction with Leonards big Mother's Day Gift Sale, a 4-day spectacular, that starts Thursday and continues through Mother's Day. There is no admission charge to meet and talk to Henry Hite.

South High to Aid Plans For School of the Future

Students at South High School have been invited to participate in the planning for a School of the Future to be built in the Florida Project of Walt Disney Productions.

Mike Vance, director of operational development at Disney, said South High students will be invited to discuss their ideas for a school of the future next Monday. Vance and other Disney executives will be on the South High campus Monday to interview individuals and student groups.
